City, Maryland Inst., Baltimore; Johns Hopkins Univ. (physical sciences, etc.); m. Baltimore, Md., April 21, 1895, Helen, d. Lewis H. and Rebecca Hirshberg; one daughter, Estelle, b. March 5, 1896. Removed with parents to U. S. in 1865; began in 1876 as telegraph operator of the Gold and Stock and the Western Union Telegraph Cos.; removed to N. Y. City, 1880 and became identified with development of electric light industry in employ of the Edison Co., the U. S. Elec. Illuminating Co., Fuller Mf'g Co., etc.; returned to Baltimore, 1884, to devote attention to developing his inventions in electric signalling, railroading, controlling apparatus and illumination, organizing companies to push these inventions; among these being his well-known regulating socket, which was the first practicable device for "turning down" or controlling the light or candle-power of incandescent electric lamps without the use of wasteful resistance, thereby placing the incandescent lamp on a par with gas. Also inventor and patentee of the modern alternating current of "converter" electric railway system, by which the limitations and restrictions of the 500-volt trolley systems were for the first time successfully overcome. The underlying principle of electric generation, transmission, conversion and distribution disclosed in these patents made possible the various rapid-transit subways and tunnels now operating in N. Y. City, and the electrification of suburban and long-distance steam railways now going on in the U. S. and other countries. His basic patents on this invention were finally adjudged in his favor after nearly 14 years litigation, and were purchased by the Westinghouse Elec. and Mf'g Co. in 1903. Has taken out over 150 patents on various pioneer inventions; many of which are in extensive use, some of the more notable being his method of electrically welding track-rails, new processes of rivetting by electricity, underground electric railway conduit or sub-trolley system now used in New York and other large cities, methods and appliances for electric heating and cooking, telephone and telephonograph systems and apparatus, etc., among others in general use are his basic patents of Feb. 1, 1887 (lately expired) on electric elevator controllers, etc., covering the method and apparatus adopted by the Atis Elevator Co. and others on their electric elevators, and for general motor-starting and braking purposes. Pres. and gen. mg'r The United States Automatic Telephone Co. Independent in politics. Hebrew religion. Mem. Am. Inst. Elec. Eng'rs, A. A. A. S., Am. Electrochem Soc., N. Y. Elec. Soc., Am. Elected 1881 and reëlected 1882 and 1883 mem. N. Y. Assembly; in session of 1883 (in which the Democrats had a majority) was a candidate for the speakership; and in session of 1884 was chm'n Com. on Cities, and of the special committee which investigated abuses in the conduct of the government of N. Y. City. In 1884 was delegate to N. Y. State Republican Convention, and later in same year delegate at large, and chm'n of N. Y. delegation to the Nat. Republican Convention at Chicago; supported Senator Edmunds for the presidential nomination, but when Blaine was nominated, entered actively into the campaign in his behalf. Bought a ranch in North Dakota and lived on it for two years studying the Far West and its people thoroughly and becoming an adept as ranchman and hunter. Returned to N. Y. City, 1886, and was made Republican nominee for mayor, but was defeated by Abram S. Hewitt; appt'd mem. U. S. Civil Service Comm'n, 1889, and served as its pres., but resigned that office in 1895 to accept the presidency of the Police Comm'n under the administration of Mayor Strong, which office held until April 6, 1897, when was appt'd by President McKinley, ass't sec. of the Navy. When war with Spain was declared he resigned his position in the Navy Dep't and with Dr. Leonard Wood, an army surgeon, organized the First Reg't U. S. Volunteer Cavalry, recruited from the ranches of the West and popularly known as the Rough Riders, Surgeon Wood, because of his superior tactical knowledge, becoming colonel and Mr. Roosevelt lieut.-col.; reg't went to the front, to Cuba, and participated in the fighting in front of Santiago de Cuba, and was promoted to colonelcy of the reg't for gallantry at Las Guasimas; at close of the war returned with reg't to Montauk Point, where was mustered out of service; shortly afterward was nominated for and Nov. 1898, was elected governor of New York; in 1900 was nominated for Vice-President of the United States by the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia, and elected, and entered on the duties of that office, March 4, 1901; on the death of President McKinley, Sept. 14, 1901, was sworn in as President; in the National Convention, 1904, was nominated for President, and in the November election was elected by a plurality in the popular vote of 2,512,417 and a majority of 1,696,142, for the term beginning Mar. 4, 1904, and expiring March 4, 1909. His administration has been marked by the inauguration of great works of public improvement, notably the Panama Canal; by measures for the orderly government and advancement of the people of our insular possessions, by the prosecution of faithless officials, the curbing of law-breaking corporations, the making of laws for proper inspection of the packing and meat-dressing industries, the prevention of frauds and impurities in food products, the conservation of our natural resources, and other salutory measures inaugurated in response to the President's initiative. In foreign policy Mr. Roosevelt has taken the part of a peacemaker, and through his initiative Russia and Japan, by the treaty of Portsmouth were brought to the conclusion of an honorable peace, in recognition of which the B'd of Directors of the Nobel Institute of Stockholm conferred upon him, in 1906, the Nobel Peace Prize. Although for twenty-five years past almost continuously occupied with the public service he has earned distinction also in the profession of letters. Author: History of the Naval War of 1812, 1882; Hunting Trips of a

SWORDS, Edward Jenner:

Railroad official; b. N. Y. City, Jan., 1842; s. Edward Jenner and Jamima (Striker) Swords; ed. in N. Y. City; m. 1st, N. Y. City, 1872, Julia J. Marvin; 2d Nov., 1890, Nellie Irving; children: Edward J., William V., Walter Marvin (deceased). Officer in U. S. Navy; volunteer service; made cruise around the world. While serving as eng'r, U. S. N., during bombardment of Fort Fisher, Dec. 24, 1864, the ship to which he was attached was struck with a 10-inch Columbia, considerably below the water-line; noticing that no effort was being made by the deck officers to plug the hole, he and another eng'r proposed to the comd'g officer that they would do it, and at their request the starboard battery was run over to the port side so as to list the ship and bring the hole as near as possible to the surface and to the boat's crew. Personally plugged the hole, although the plugs on board were made for the guns of Revolutionary times and were only .6 inches in diameter, therefore had to wrap a blanket around in order to fit the hole as he drove the plug in with a sledge; all this time the shots from the fort were striking all around the party, and the ship was rapidly sinking; one boiler had been perforated by the shot, but there was steam enough in the boiler to run a donkey engine, and keep the pumps at work until the ship was soon after relieved from the water, and went into action the next day. Before he was 24 years of age he represented practically all the important brewing interests in the city of N. Y., and was counsel for the local, State and U. S. Brewers' Ass'ns. He has been identified with many celebrated cases; defended Asa Bird Gardner against the attempt to remove him from office as district attorney of N. Y. County; represented the Wertheimers, English art dealers, in their controversy against the Count and Countess de Castellane, and was instrumental in securing to the creditors of the Castellane Estate the payment in full of their claims, amounting to 20,000,000 francs; represented Charles W. Morse in the Dodge-Morse controversy, and has been counsel in many other celebrated cases. He has been prominently engaged in the organization and reorganization of industrial, mining and railroad corporations; is general counsel for the Kansas City Southern R'y and for the Receivers of the Seaboard Air Line R'y; represents the English Debenture-Holders' and Shareholders' Com. of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., in connection with the recent receivership and proposed reorganization. While one of the earliest to become active in the organization of industrial combinations, he has been one of the most vigorous opponents of corporate abuses. His exposure of the proposed financial plan of reorganization of the U. S. Shipbuilding Co. led to the substitution of a more conservative one which saved hundreds of thousands of dollars to the investors; and his exposure of the great life insurance companies' corruption funds paid to campaign managers and in connection with legislation, led to the subsequent investigations, to the removal of the officers who had been principally responsible for the irregularities, and to the passage of laws in many States making it a criminal offense for a life insurance company to contribute to a political campaign or to influence legislation; and he has been at the head of several Policy-holders' Committees. HIGHLAND SPRING WATER

FROM ANDROSCOGGIN COUNTY, MAINE

UNSURPASSED FOR FAMILY USE FOR DRINKING

It is the Best Tonic, Diuretic, Eliminative and Solvent of Uric Acid

1. Because it is the softest and purest water known, containing no excess of mineral salts, and no lime or organic impurities, being therefore non-irritating to the digestive organs and kidneys.

2. Because it contains iron in combination with the alkalies, Sodium and Potassium in small quantities, as recommended by Professors Flint, Thompson, Draper and others.

3. Because it comes from a region free from malarial germs.

4. Because all its mineral salts, and five of them in the exact form given in its analysis, are found in the human blood, of which they form a most essential part.

ANALYSIS — Each gallon contains:

Carbonate of Iron	1.100 grs.	Sulphate of Soda and Potash	0.310 grs.
Oxide of Iron	0.310 "	Carbonate of Soda and Potash	0.831 "
Chloride of Sodium	1.000 "	Carbonate of Magnesia	1.230 "
			4.781

HIGHLAND SPRING WATER has the strongest endorsement of the Medical profession, including such high authorities as Drs. George B. Fowler, Charles Jewett, J. E. Janvrin, Austin Flint, Jr., R. W. Wilcox, William H. Porter, H. Everett Russell, Thomas Satterthwaite, and many others, who use it in their practice and in their families. It has been used and commended by Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard, U. S. A., Rev. Henry Van Dyke, D.D., of Princeton, Ex-Gov. Alonzo Garcelon of Maine and many other distinguished citizens; and is used in the households of many of the most prominent New Yorkers including those of Col. John Jacob Astor, Henry Clews, Col. William Conant Church, James Speyer, Edwin Gould, W. D. Sloane, J. C. Pumpelly, H. McK. Twombly and many others equally well known.

WHO'S WHO

IN NEW YORK CITY AND STATE.

This biennial publication, now in its Fourth Edition, has become the recognized standard of authority with reference to those New Yorkers who are leaders and representatives in various departments of progress and achievement.

It is the only publication which with any pretension to completeness furnishes the biographic data pertaining to the New York men and women whose careers are of the greatest interest, and whose lives interpret in the most significant manner the progressive preeminence of the Empire State.

It covers all departments of intellectual and business life and is thoroughly comprehensive, and at the same time is condensed in form of statement, so that all the important life statistics of each subject are furnished in a brief statement, confined to the facts themselves and free from criticism, eulogy or other extraneous matter. The book is thus of unique value as a work of reference for its territorial field.

The First Edition was issued in 1904, the Second in 1905, the Third in 1907, and the current or Fourth Edition is that for 1909. The Fifth will follow two years later.

The volume is regarded as one of the indispensables by librarians, not only in New York City and State but also in all parts of this and largely in foreign countries; and in many household libraries it has taken an equally important place.

The authenticity of its records is as absolute as the utmost care can make it. The data have been procured from first hands and the sketches have been verified by their subjects. The volume is, therefore, a thoroughly reliable dictionary of contemporaries. For the greater part the facts it contains have never been published before, and of the remaining information little is readily accessible from any other source.

A feature of great value is the appending to each sketch the address of its subject, so that it not only relates of the notable New Yorkers who and what they are, but also where they are.

The earlier volumes are valuable because they contain biographies of prominent people who have died or removed from the State, and the entire series will furnish complete the biographic history of New Yorkers in the Twentieth Century.

The price is Five Dollars per volume, but the few remaining copies of the First, Second and Third editions will be sold at half price while they last.
